

The Simple Path to Curing a Cancer called Sin

Miriam Fernández

I have a chronic condition so much like cancer (sin). It's a disease that lives in me and I have no power to control it. Nothing I can do will cure it. It is often invisible to the eye unless I have a flare up. The disease can keep me blind to even the cure which also lives inside me (Emmanuel). Let us call the cure the Divine Physician. For the moment only He can keep my condition in remission until the day I will be fully liberated from this cancer.

“Allow Me, your only remedy, to live in you side-by-side with your cancer”, He implores.

The sickness is solely mine and the cure is solely His. As I walk and talk with the Divine Physician, he speaks clearly the truth about the condition I have and the underlying complications that I am unaware of but are present nonetheless.

Living inside me are antigens (e.g. envy, pride, self-love, vanity) which aggravate my condition from time to time. They work against healing and create symptoms that I have become accustomed to and have accepted as normal. But they are not! I have lived with them so long they only appear to be normal and I barely notice their side effects. I have to be attentive and become aware of them. Counteracting these antigens is moving towards greater healing.

“Don't be content with just short periods of remission, go towards a fuller recovery!”

Remain visiting with the Divine Physician.

Refuse to blame others for your flare ups - it does absolutely nothing toward healing but, actually, causes more harm and may even cause the disease to spread more rapidly. It is also obstructing the medicine from taking affect.

Again, go often before this Doctor. He is the difference between life and death. Listen to his wisdom; following his advice for your healing is of utmost importance. It will be needed by many others as well. And when the others do come, refer them to your Doctor and the Path he shared with you. In this way, you share the gift you've been given until the day you are fully restored.